American Journal of Sociology

Cumulative Index 1895-1965

The Cumulative Index covering volumes one through seventy has been reprinted and is now available in paperback at a price of $6.50 a copy.

Every article published in the American Journal of Sociology up to 1965 is listed by author, title, and subject. The book review index is included.

We are also happy to announce that the supplementary index, covering volumes 71-75 (1966-1970) will be published in early 1971.

Both indices are invaluable sources for research in sociological theory and its applications.

Please send this card with your check or purchase order to:

American Journal of Sociology
The University of Chicago Press
11030 Langley Avenue
Chicago, Illinois 60637

☐ Please send me the Cumulative Index at $6.50 a copy.

☐ When the price for the Supplementary Index has been established, please let me know.

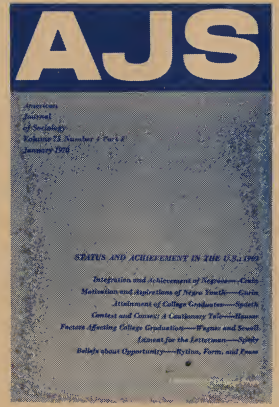
Name_____

Address_____

City_____ State_____ Zip_____

Printed in U.S.A.

Order Form



☐ Single copies: $2.50
(Institutions: $3.50)
vol.____ no.____

Please enter my subscription to The American Jounal of Sociology for the period marked below, beginning with the September 1970 issue.
My check or purchase order is enclosed.

All foreign countries add one-dollar for each year's subscription for postage.

	1 year	2 years	3 years
Individuals	☐ $10.00	☐ $19.00	☐ $28.00
Institutions	☐ 15.00	☐ 28.00	☐ 40.00

☐ ASA member: $7.50
☐ Students at accredited institutions: $6.00

004894
THEODOR H NELSON
458 W 20TH ST
NEW YORK NY 10011

L 2

Fold here and mail to: The American Journal of Sociology, The University of Chicago Press, 11030 Langley Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60628.

76-68-70-01a Printed in U.S.A.

American Journal of Sociology

Coming in The American Journal of Sociology

"Uncle Tom and Mr. Charlie: Metaphysical Pathos in the Study of Racism and Personal Disorganization" — John D. McCarthy and William L. Yancey

"American Sociology and Black Assimilation: Conflicting Perspectives" — Paul Metzger

"An Empirical Study of Military-Industrial Linkages" — Stanley Lieberson

"Formal Western Education and Individual Modernity" — Michael Armer

"Class and Marriage in Africa and Eurasia" — Jack Goody

"Ability to Alter Skin Color: Some Implications for U.S. Society" — Richard Henschel

"Black Invisibility, The Press, and the Los Angeles Riot" — Paula B. Johnson, David O. Sears, and John B. McConahay

American Journal of Sociology

The University of Chicago Press
5801 Ellis Avenue
Chicago, Illinois 60637

The American Journal of Sociology is a primary source of sociological scholarship, criticism, and research. It is not limited to particular topics, methods, or theoretical orientations. Articles and features are of general interest to investigators, students, and teachers of sociology. Papers are selected according to only two criteria: excellence, and relevance to contemporary sociological studies. A primary aim of the Journal is to sustain communication between scholars before ideas have hardened and become fixed.

From recent issues:

INTEGRATED SCHOOLS: THE NONEDUCATIONAL REWARDS

Negroes who have attended integrated schools have better jobs and higher incomes throughout at least the next three decades of their life. The advantage cannot be accounted for by higher education or by difference in social background. Mr. Crain posits that the most significant aspect is not "educational." Crucial barriers to equal opportunity are overcome by access to information about employment opportunities which is spread through informal channels and contacts, previously unavailable to Negroes.

"School Integration and Occupational Achievement of Negroes" — Robert L. Crain (vol. 75, no. 4, part 2)

POLITICAL POWER: CAUSE OR EFFECT?

Do changes in the organization of power promote economic development or induce it? Mr. Walton contends that there is insufficient data to support either proposition. His study focuses upon the specific conditions under which power arrangements are conducive to developmental decision making and draws several implications for theories of modernization.

"Development Decision Making: A Comparative Study in Latin America" — John Walton (vol. 75, no. 5)

THE IMPETUS FOR CHANGE

This study attempts to illustrate the influence of structural effects on innovativeness. By isolating the external constraints and community values from the individual's externalized values, the data suggest that either constructed or perceived community values have a direct effect on innovation.

"Influence of Community Values on Innovativeness" — William L. Flinn (vol. 75, no. 6)

WOMEN'S RIGHTS: SUBTLE BARRIERS

Despite impressive gains in the scope of women's social and political rights, there have been few extensions of sex-linked boundaries in the prestigious male-dominated professions. The study identifies the structure and processes which act to limit participation and achievement within those professions, identifies the channels of recruitment and advancement which are closed, and describes the modes of behavior that reinforce the minority position of women.

"Encountering the Male Establishment: Sex-Status Limits on Women's Careers in the Professions" — Cynthia F. Epstein (vol. 75, no. 6)

Regular features include commentary and debate, book reviews, and a list of current publications.

The American Journal of Sociology is published six times a year; subscriptions entered at this time will begin with the September issue. The annual rate is $10.00 (institutions: $15.00). Prices are slightly higher outside the United States. The enclosed order form lists complete prices plus titles of articles appearing in future issues. When used professionally, each subscription is tax deductible. May we hear from you soon?

Cordially,

C. Arnold Anderson.

C. Arnold Anderson
Editor

76-68-70-01b Printed in U.S.A.